U. S. Ship Program Balked by Time as Japs Build to Quota

WASHINGTON — U. S. Naval experts have made a confidential comparison of the American and Japanese navies which reveals some significant facts.

Japan has launched a $150,000,000 program to keep pace with the United States. By 1936 when the London Naval Treaty expires this will put her 600 tons over treaty strength.

The United States has launched a 32-ship building program costing more than $200,000,000. When this is finished around 1936, the fleet will still be about 250,000 tons below treaty strength.

The reason for this is that the United States even if it appropriated the money, cannot build ships fast enough—at least not good ships. A rush program could be put across as during the World War, but the result would be defective vessels to be junked later. Various private concerns have approached the Navy Department wanting to get into the building game, but unless they have had experience, the Navy says no.

Meanwhile the Japanese are planning to ask for an increased ratio—the war party wants parity with the U. S. A.—when the next naval conference is held.

Riverwise

Genial Edward C. Johnson, bulky Governor of Colorado, zoomed into Washington the other day after a long cross-country flight. He was perching gingerly, a little late, but exceedingly glad to arrive.

"We hit the Potomac River and started following it to Washington," he explained. "But the further we got the less it looked like Washington. Finally we discovered we were following the Susquehanna. So we had to turn around and find the Potomac again. Rivers look pretty much alike to us in Colorado."

Interesting Suggestion

Some of the wet leaders, who anticipate repeal this year, are privately—and quite seriously—suggesting an interesting European war debt solution on the Administration.

They propose that this country accept from the British, French, and Italians annual payments on their war debts for the next five years in the form of wine and liquor. The basis for their plan is the fact that the United States faces an absolute famine of domestic-made hard liquors for a five-year period following the time repeal becomes effective.

Federal pure food laws require that whiskey be aged in the wood not less than four years. At present only 9,000,000 gallons are available. With the recent easing of restrictions on prescription liquor this supply may be cut as much as two-thirds before the year is out. Before prohibition went into effect the annual U. S. consumption of whiskey was around 60,000,000 gallons.

Gov. Horner Summons State Conference To Combat Crime Menace

CHICAGO, July 28.—While authorities pushed forward today in the war against crime on all fronts deputy sheriffs were rounding up the first of 24 persons, including Al Capone, named in a blanket grand jury indictment charging a gigantic racketeering conspiracy.

At Springfield Gov. Henry Horner launched the state on a determined offensive against crime and kidnappings particularly as sheriffs, police chiefs and state's attorneys from all parts of the state gathered for the governor's crime conference.

Gov. Horner will address the meeting of police officials, outlining his campaign for a concentrated movement to combat organized criminals. The governor said special attention will be given to the kidnapping menace.

Three of the defendants named with Capone in the grand jury indictment charging conspiracy to throttle trade by bombings, strikes, sluggings and acid-throwing were under arrest today as deputy sheriffs, armed with capisoes, rounded up the men.

ATTORNEY JAILED
In addition to Aaron Sapiro, New York attorney who was arrested in that city, authorities here seized Sam Feldman and Jerry Donovan. They were held in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond set for each of the 24 defendants.

Alderman Oscar F. Nelson, a Chicago labor leader named in the indictment, was said to be in Europe.

Dr. Benjamin Squires, University of Chicago lecturer, communicated with prosecutors here and gained permission to surrender after he had arranged bond.

Police officials began a nationwide search for Murray Humphreys, so-called successor to Al Capone, who was named as a major defendant. Humphreys is fugitive from a federal indictment charging income tax evasion.

WHEAT AGAIN MAKING GAIN
Price Climbs To 90 Cents; Fluctuation in Effect Limits Price.

The price of wheat was again zooming today, local grain dealers announcing that they were paying 90 cents, following the eight-cent advance on the Chicago Board of Trade at the market close Thursday.

Elevator operators Thursday, were paying 82 cents before the market close. Corn, too, took an upward climb advancing to 52 cents Friday.

As a means of checking another "wheat market" crash, the board of trade announced Friday that wheat fluctuations may be only five cents from day to day instead of eight. That is, the price of wheat tomorrow may not be more than 95 cents nor less than 85 cents.

According to grain dealers the news concerning damage to the spring wheat crop in both the Canadian and American Northwest was chiefly responsible for the eight-cent climb Thursday.

That was the comment today of Governor George White of Ohio following his visit to three C. C. Camps in Yosemite national park.

"I was against the reforestation plan," said Governor White, "but after my inspection with Secretary of War Dorn, I am convinced that Mr. Roosevelt is saving the lives of thousands of boys."

"The boys are well fed, happy, and well cared for. I'm certain many have been spared from the fate of becoming 'drifters.'"

Health Forces County's Representative to Abandon Campaign Hope

ADVISED BY MEDICS

Plans to Again Seek Position in Assembly

Nathan C. Bohnert, Pickaway-co's representative in the general assembly, will not be a candidate for membership on the county board of education this fall because of ill health, he announced Friday.

He is resting at his home in Monroe-twp after a lengthy illness which has left him very weak.

In a communication to The Herald, Mr. Bohnert said: "I am out of the running as a candidate for the county board of education. My doctors have warned me that if I ever expect to have good health again, I must take life slow and easy for some time. I feel that it is best to try and regain my health this year and be ready for my expected campaign in 1934."

TO SEEK THIRD TERM

From the communication it is gleaned that Mr. Bohnert expects to seek a third term in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Bohnert announced himself for the county board as soon as the schools committee of the assembly killed his bill to abolish the position of superintendent of county schools. The representative is a bitter foe of this position, he declares, because of its expense.

His announcement leaves W. I. Spangler of Turlington, as the only new man who has designated his intention of seeking a board berth. Mr. Spangler, a former state senator, will oppose Wayne Honver of Jackson-twp. C. E. Meyers of Washington-twp. and W. F. Barch of Harrison-twp. all present members of the board. Three are to be elected.

JOHNSON ASKS 'MOTOR CODE'

Administrator in Detroit To Close Pact; Has Ford's Promise, He Says.

DETROIT, July 28.—Plainly stating that the auto industry must abandon its long-cherished "open shop" policy, Brigadier General Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of NIRA, today served notice that he would stay here until the motor industry adopts a code.

The dynamic chief of President Roosevelt's gigantic industrial recovery program, arrived spectacularly from the capital by plane yesterday, when it became apparent that some hitch had developed in the auto industry's code negotiations. He was to meet with the motor chiefs today.

He minced no words describing the purpose of his visit. "We will get together in one way or another. I'll not leave Detroit until an agreement is buttoned up."

He declared he would insist that the auto industry recognize the right of labor to organize, he added that he would strongly recommend the adoption of a 33-hour week in the motor factories.

The general plainly intimated that the labor union clause in NIRA is the point on which the motor chiefs have been deadlocked.

He revealed that two weeks ago he had made a secret flight to Detroit, where he held a conference with Henry Ford, and returned to Washington with Ford's assurance of support.

SUPT. DALEY TELLS OF ROTARY SESSION

Interesting Quotations From Each Principal Address Are Told.

Relating his interesting experiences and impressions at the Rotary International convention held at Boston, Mass., June 25-30, E. L. Daley, president of the Rotary club, spoke to that organization at its meeting Thursday. Mr. Daley was a delegate to the convention from the Circleville and London clubs.

He lauded the spirit of the convention which he said he was unable to bring home in all of its fulness. Mr. Daley's report was very complete, containing a number of interesting quotations from all of the principal speeches.

It would be difficult to review Mr. Daley's report without printing the entire text, however, he said the most impressive remarks he heard at the convention were made by Maurice P. Duprey of Paris, France, who said:

"No effort must be spared to definitely remove speculation in every form, because speculation which may at the outset create false hopes and prosperity, will inevitably lead to ruin."

Mr. Daley will deliver the address to the London Rotary club soon.

Thousands of Signed Agreements Mailed To U. S. Administrator.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Thousands of signed agreements between industrial and business firms and the president, to shorten hours and pay the minimum wages asked as a prelude to national recovery, were enroute to Washington today.

Not all places in the United States had received the necessary blank forms, but this did not deter them. The agreements were sent on typed and other improvised forms.

At the same time Brig. Gen. H. S. Johnson, national recovery administrator was in Detroit on an undisclosed mission, but believed to be an attempt to speed the agreement of automobile manufacturers which has been in preparation but lagging on the way.

In a number of cities distribution was held up yesterday because the forms were not received in time for delivery during the day. Nevertheless Philadelphia reported 107 mail pouches of agreements had been received up to a late hour yesterday. The St. Louis postmaster reported one firm, the Pet Milk Co., employing 1,000 people, had sent in a signed agreement.

Besides promises of similar support from a score of more of outstanding industries, pledges of cooperation from state executives continued to be received, including the Governor of West Virginia, H. G. Knapp, who decreed by executive order that all state agencies should adjust their work to conform to the president's program.

U. S. Ship Program Balked by Time as Japs Build to Quota

WASHINGTON — U. S. Naval experts have made a confidential comparison of the American and Japanese navies which reveals some significant facts.

Japan has launched a $150,000,000 program to keep pace with the United States. By 1936 when the London Naval Treaty expires this will put her 600 tons over treaty strength.

The United States has launched a 32-ship building program costing more than $200,000,000. When this is finished around 1936, the fleet will still be about 250,000 tons below treaty strength.

The reason for this is that the United States even if it appropriated the money, cannot build ships fast enough—at least not good ships. A rush program could be put across as during the World War, but the result would be defective vessels to be junked later. Various private concerns have approached the Navy Department wanting to get into the building game, but unless they have had experience, the Navy says no.

Meanwhile the Japanese are planning to ask for an increased ratio—the war party wants parity with the U. S. A.—when the next naval conference is held.

Riverwise

Genial Edward C. Johnson, bulky Governor of Colorado, zoomed into Washington the other day after a long cross-country flight. He was perspiring generously, a little late, but exceedingly glad to arrive.

"We hit the Potomac River and started following it to Washington," he explained. "But the further we got the less it looked like Washington. Finally we discovered we were following the Susquehanna. So we had to turn around and find the Potomac again. Rivers look pretty much alike to us in Colorado."

Interesting Suggestion

Some of the wet leaders, who anticipate repeal this year, are privately—and quite seriously—weighing an interesting European war debt solution on the Administration.

They propose that this country accept from the British, French, and Italians annual payments on their war debts for the next five years in the form of wines and liquors. The basis for their plan is the fact that the United States faces an absolute famine of domestic-made hard liquors for a five-year period following the time repeal becomes effective.

Federal pure food laws require that whiskey be aged in the wood not less than four years. At present only 9,000,000 gallons are available. With the easing of restrictions liquor supply may be cut as much as two-thirds before the year is out. Before prohibition went into effect the annual U. S. consumption of whiskey was around 60,000,000 gallons.

The wets argue that once repeal is an actuality huge importations will become necessary. Why shouldn't the government, they ask, go into the business for the next five years in a debt payment arrangement with the European powers? Prior to prohibition this country imported $60,000,000 in whiskey annually from England alone. France and Italy could send their wines. All would have a sale here, a vexatious international problem would be solved, good will would be promoted, and the Treasury would be the gainer by $375,000,000 a year.

ON BOARD GOVERNORS' TRAIN TO LOS ANGELES, July 28.—"I thought it would be a failure. Now I know different."

That was the comment today of Governor George White of Ohio following his visit to three C. C. camps in Yosemite national park.

"It was against the reforestation plan," said Governor White, "but after my inspection with Secretary of War Dorn, I'm convinced that Mr. Roosevelt is saving the lives of thousands of boys."

"The boys are well fed, happy, and well cared for. I'm certain many have been spared from the fate of becoming 'drifters'."

A group of 200 Ohio youths in camp met and gave cheers for Gov. White.

Shustrom, a former Galesburg, Ill., high school student, attacked the Knight girl at her home in Whiting, Ind., and then killed her. Gov. Paul McCurt had denied the youth's plea for clemency which was based on a contention that he was intoxicated when the murder was committed.

Shustrom was executed at 1 a. m. after the Rev. Frederick Westendorf administered the last rites.

BOHNERT OUT OF RACE FOR SCHOOL POST

Health Forces County's Representative to Abandon Campaign Hope

ADVISED BY MEDICS

Plans to Again Seek Position in Assembly

Nathan C. Bohnert, Pickaway-co's representative in the general assembly, will not be a candidate for membership on the county board of education this fall because of ill health, he announced Friday.

He is resting at his home in Monroe-twp after a lengthy illness which has left him very weak.

In a communication to The Herald, Mr. Bohnert said:

"I am out of the running as a candidate for the county board of education. My doctors have warned me that if I ever expect to have good health again, I must take life slow and easy for some time, so I feel that it is best to try and regain my health this year and be ready for my expected campaign in 1934."

TO SEEK THIRD TERM

From the communication it is gleaned that Mr. Bohnert expects to seek a third term in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Bohnert announced himself for the county board as soon as the schools committee of the assembly killed his bill to abolish the position of superintendent of county schools. The representative is a bitter foe of this position, he declares, because of its expense.

His announcement leaves W. I. Spangler of Tarleton, as the only new man who has designated his intention of seeking a board berth.

Mr. Spangler, a former state senator, will oppose Wayne Hoover of Jackson-twp, C. E. Meyers of Washington-twp, and W. H. Barch of Harrison-twp, all present members of the board. Three are to be elected.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at the Cedar Hill Evangelical church, Rev. Terry officiating, for Orrie Riegel, prominent farmer, who died early Thursday.

Mr. Riegel was a native and lifelong resident of the Cedar Hill vicinity. He was born April 26, 1880, a son of the late Isaac and Susan Reed Riegel. His wife, Sarah Rebecca Frettinger, preceded him in death.

The following children, Dorothy Riegel of Columbus, Mrs. Clara Spangler of Cedar Hill, and Raymond and Gayle Riegel, at home, survive. Two brothers, C. H. and C. C. Riegel and a sister, Mrs. Jesse Wailes of Cedar Hill and the following half-brothers and sisters, Mrs. Flora Pausnigh, Wilbert Riegel and Mrs. Ruth Weaver, all of Cedar Hill, and Ray Riegel of Georgia, also survive.

Benson was unable to pay the fine and was committed to the county jail until fine and costs are paid. Tom A. Renick was his attorney.

JOHNSON ASKS 'MOTOR CODE'

Administrator in Detroit To Close Pact; Has Ford's Promise, He Says.

DETROIT, July 28.—Plainly stating that the auto industry must abandon its long-cherished "open shop" policy, Brigadier General Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of NIRA, today served notice that he would stay here until the motor industry adopts a code.

The dynamic chief of President Roosevelt's gigantic industrial recovery program, arrived spectacularly from the capital by plane yesterday, when it became apparent that some hitch had developed in the auto industry's code negotiations. He was to meet with the motor chiefs today.

He minced no words describing the purpose of his visit: "We will get together in one way or another. I'll not leave Detroit until an agreement is buttoned up."

He declared he would insist that the auto industry recognize the right of labor to organize, he added that he would strongly recommend the adoption of a 33-hour week in the motor factories.

The general plainly intimated that the labor union clause in NIRA is the point on which the motor chiefs have been deadlocked.

He revealed that two weeks ago he had made a secret flight to Detroit, where he held a conference with Henry Ford, and returned to Washington with Ford's assurance of support.

SUPT. DALEY TELLS OF ROTARY SESSION

Interesting Quotations From Each Principal Address Are Told.

Relating his interesting experiences and impressions at the Rotary International convention held at Boston, Mass., June 25-30, E. L. Daley, president of the Rotary club, spoke to that organization at its meeting Thursday. Mr. Daley was a delegate to the convention from the Circleville and London clubs.

He lauded the spirit of the convention which he said was unable to bring home in all of its fullness. Mr. Daley's report was very complete containing a number of interesting quotations from all of the principal speeches.

It would be difficult to review Mr. Daley's report without printing the entire text, however, he said the most impressive remarks he heard at the convention were made by Maurice P. Duprey of Paris, France, who said:

"No effort must be spared to definitely remove speculation in every form, because speculation which may at the outset create fallacious prosperity, will inevitably lead to ruin."

Mr. Daley will deliver the address to the London Rotary club soon.

CANDIDATES FOR CITY POSTMASTER'S JOB TO RECEIVE APPLICATIONS

Pledges Flooding Johnson

Thousands of Signed Agreements Mailed To U. S. Administrator.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Thousands of signed agreements between industrial and business firms and the president, to shorten hours and pay the minimum wages asked as a prelude to national recovery, were enroute to Washington today.

Not all places in the United States had received the necessary blank forms, but this did not deter them. The agreements were sent on typed and other improvised forms.

At the same time Brig. Gen. H. S. Johnson, national recovery administrator was in Detroit on an undisclosed mission, but believed to be an attempt to speed the agreement of automobile manufacturers which has been in preparation but lagging on the way.

In a number of cities distribution was held up yesterday because the forms were not received in time for delivery during the day. Nevertheless Philadelphia reported 107 mail pouches of agreements had been received up to a late hour yesterday. The St. Louis postmaster reported one firm, the Pet Milk Co., employing 1,000 people, had sent in a signed agreement.

Besides promises of similar support from a score of more outstanding industries, pledges of cooperation from state executives continued to be received, including the Governor of West Virginia, H. G. Kump, who decreed by executive order that all state agencies should adjust their work to conform to the president's program.

SLUGGERS AND OILS TO MEET

First Place at Stake as Teams
Line Up For Tonight's Contest.

A contest with the league leadership at stake will be played at the Commons this evening with the Walisa Sluggers and the Sinclair Oils tangle.

In order to get through before dark the game will start at 6:30 p. m. Both managers are expected to have their teams on hand in time to begin on the dot.

The Walisas are now in first place by virtue of playing more games than the Oils. Each team, however, has lost one contest so the team winning tonight will go into undisputed first place.

The game is expected to be a battle between Leroy Oliver on the hill for the Sluggers and George Vreberome tossing them up for the Oils.

Umpires have not been announced. The contest is expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the season.

TEACHOUT GAINS VERDICT IN DUEL

In a splendid mound duel between Bud Teachout for Columbus and Jack Tising for Indianapolis, Columbus' climbing Red Birds defeated Indianapolis, 3-2, Thursday night.

About 6,000 persons witnessed the game which was one of the best played this season in the Stadium.

The poison blow of the fracas was Nick Cullop's close into a light standard across the right field fence. Riggs was on base when the blow was delivered.

Burgess Whitehead's double with Bill Delaney on base accounted for the other marker.

Signafoos hit a home run for the Indians with Dudley Lee driving in the other Indian run.

Teachout fanned seven batters and walked only one while Tising "franked" six and fanned five.

Toledo invades the Columbus park for the first game of a series today.

The hero—Cliff Bolton, Washington pinch hitter. His freak single in the tenth with bases full gave Nats a 3 to 2 victory in crucial game with Yankees.

The goat—Ben Cantwell, Braves. Held Phillies to two hits in second game but was beaten, 2 to 1, by Schumacher's homer with a man on base in the seventh. Cantwell pitched hitless ball for six innings.

The Scotch Know About The Nutmegs
By IRVIN S. COBB

AMONG golfers this one is at present having a more or less deserved circulation. A Yankee enthusiast on his return home from the grand tour was telling his friend of his experience on foreign links.

"Say," he said, "The Scotch are a mighty tricky race. You know what I mean—liars and that sort of thing."

"Well, I'm only going by a sample specimen that I ran into. He may not have been typical but I'll say this for him; he was a sharp practitioner. I met him one morning at a club in the Lowlands. I was looking for a partner and he seemed to be alone, too. So I said to him: 'What do you generally go around in?'"

"Oh," he said, "about 105 or 106 when I'm on my game."

"That's me, too," I said, "if I break 110 on any course I'm doing pretty well. I guess we're pretty well mated. Suppose we play together for a shilling a hole?"

"Well, he took me up," continued the American, "and he turned out to be one terrible liar. Why, that Scotch son-of-a-gun made an ace-two and I had to play my head off to take three shillings away from him."

SLUGGERS AND OILS TO MEET

First Place at Stake as Teams Line Up For Tonight's Contest.

A contest with the league leadership at stake will be played at the Commons this evening with the Wallis Sluggers and the Sinclair Oils tangling.

In order to get through before dark the game will start at 6:30 p. m. Both managers are expected to have their teams on hand in time to begin on the dot.

The Wallis are now in first place by virtue of playing more games than the Oils. Each team, however, has lost one contest so the team winning tonight will go into undisputed first place.

The game is expected to be a battle between Leroy Oliver on the hill for the Sluggers and George Vlerobome tossing them up for the Oils.

Umpires have not been announced.

The contest is expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the season.

The standing of the teams follows:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Sluggers	5	1	.833
Sinclair Oils	3	1	.750
Bulldogs	4	3	.571
Circleville Oils	2	3	.400
Aces	0	5	.000
Panthers	0	1	.000

TEACHOUT GAINS

VERDICT IN DUEL

In a splendid mound duel between Bud Teachout for Columbus and Jack Tising for Indianapolis, Columbus' climbing Red Birds defeated Indianapolis, 3-2, Thursday night.

About 6,000 persons witnessed the game which was one of the best played this season in the Stadium.

The poison blow of the fracas was Nick Cullop's clout into a light standard across the right field fence. Riggs was on base when the blow was delivered.

Burgess Whitehead's double with Bill Delancey on base accounted for the other marker.

Sigafoos hit a home run for the Indians with Dudley Lee driving in the other Indian run.

Teachout fanned seven batters and walked only one while Tising 'franked' six and fanned five.

Toledo invades the Columbus park for the first game of a series today.

Comfort for Champ

Frankie Parker, 17-year-old clay court tennis champion, follows the lead of the famous English star, "Bunny" Austin, by appearing in shorts on the courts. Here is the Minneapolis boy wonder in action at the Seabright, N. J., tournament while the thermometer hovered around the 92 mark.

Daily Drama

By International News Service.

The hero—Cliff Bolton, Washington pinch hitter. His freak single in the tenth with bases full gave Nats a 3 to 2 victory in crucial game with Yankees.

The goat—Ben Cantwell, Braves. Held Phillies to two hits in second game but was beaten, 2 to 1, by Schulmerich's homer with a man on base in the seventh. Cantwell pitched hitless ball for six innings.

SHORT IS WINNER

Harry Short, former local man, "knocked them for a row" at Logan, Thursday, in the harness races when he drove Sonny Hal, a bay gelding, to first place in each of three heats for the 2:19 pace for a $150 purse.

The Scotch Know About The Nutmegs

By IRVIN S. COBB

AMONG golfers this one is at present having a more or less deserved circulation.

A Yankee enthusiast on his return home from the grand tour was telling his friend of his experience on foreign links.

"Say," he said, "The Scotch are a mighty tricky race. You know what I mean—liars and that sort of thing."

"Well, I'm only going by a sample specimen that I ran into. He may not have been typical but I'll say this for him; he was a sharp practitioner. I met him one morning at a club in the Lowlands. I was looking for a partner and he seemed to be alone, too. So I said to him:

"What do you generally go around in?"

"Oh," he said, "about 105 or 106 when I'm on my game."

"That's me, too," I said, "if I break 110 on any course I'm doing pretty well. I guess we're pretty well mated. Suppose we play together for a shilling a hole?"

"Well, he took me up," continued the American, "and he turned out to be one terrible liar. Why, that Scotch son-of-a-gun made an eighty-two and I had to play my head off to take three shillings away from him."

U. S. SEEKS TO FREE WORKS PROGRAM OF ANY GRAFTED COSTS

WASHINGTON, July 28.—A web-like investigation system to render "graft-proof" the $3,300,000 public works program was promised today by the public works administration.

The system will not only embrace the huge federal projects but will extend to state, county and city public works in the remotest corners of the country, when federal money is granted or loaned.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, as public works administrator, planned to give Louis P. Glavis, chief of the department's investigation staff, wide power to check upon contracts and methods of carrying out public works projects.

VISIT ALL SECTIONS

The tentative plan calls for a small staff of investigators, responsible to Ickes and Glavis, who will travel into every section of the country.

Although regional and state advisory boards have been named to decentralize the applications for funds to build local projects with federal funds, state engineers will be named. These engineers will be directly responsible to Col. Henry Waite, deputy administrator.

In addition the forces of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will be utilized to see that labor gets a square deal and attorneys with scrutinize all contracts.

Ickes was also seeking a record for low administration costs. He had salaries of the 10 regional advisers at $6,000 a year and will allow the state advisers $10 a day for each day they work, with $5 for subsistence when away from home.

Approval of a $70,000,000 army housing project appeared imminent, after the war department slashed its original request in half.

The public works board, however, has refused to consider a request for $20,000,000 to carry out existing flood control contracts. It held that Director of the Budget Douglas, who impounded the funds, should release them.

The board declined to discuss rivers and harbors projects at its meeting yesterday. Although Maj. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, was present to explain the situation, the war department has an initial $50,000,000 rivers and harbors program. Army motorization also was temporarily shelved.

Attorney General Cummings at Washington to have Capone brought here from Atlanta penitentiary to stand trial with the others.

"This is the first time the state has been able to get anything on Capone," said Courtney, "and we would like to make sure he will go to the state penitentiary when he finished his Atlanta sentence."

Twenty-three counts were lodged against each defendant, and conviction will carry a possible maximum penalty of one to five years imprisonment and $2,000 fine.

Federal department of justice agents meanwhile were cooperating with police in the campaign to curb gunmen who have killed nine policemen, among other victims, since January 1.

To rush quick-triggered criminals to speedy trials and cut the red tape of court procedure, Chief Justice John Prystalski has appealed for volunteer judges to sit on the criminal court bench for two weeks of their vacations.

The courtroom murder of Policeman John Sevik Monday moved Judge Prystalski to take emergency action.

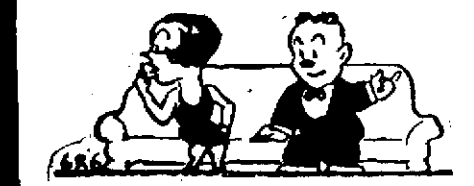

PORTSMOUTH, July 28.—Because a host of orders had changed production, according to company officials, salesmen of the Shelby Shoe Co. here today were called in off the road to permit the concern to catch up with the demand.

The plant's entire output has been sold up to Oct. 1. Calling in of the salesmen to avoid too many orders was the first action of its kind in years.

ONE trouble about being a girl is that you've got to waste a lot of time with boys that ain't very interesting. Why, a girl will let a guy call on her, just to see whether he shows any signs of a brain or a bank account, and she generally finds out by nine o'clock all about him. But she can't send him home then, and she's got to appear to be awake for a long time after that.

But one guy said to his girl, "Say, if I stay till twelve, do you think your Ma will be sore?"

"Not unless she has to entertain you," says the girl. And, so he stayed.

MILES STUDIES OHIO PROGRAM

Thousands of Jobs To Be Available Within Short Time, Disclose.

COLUMBUS, July 28.—Thousands of jobs for Ohioans are to be made available in a very short time after the state advisory board on public works swings into action, probably next week, International News Service learned today.

Rufus E. Miles of Columbus one of the three members appointed to the board Wednesday, declared that approval will be given to numerous proposed Ohio projects immediately, and that plans will promptly be laid before Secretary of the Interior Ickes, public works administrator, for his sanction.

Projects totaling almost $70,000,000 have been proposed to the Ohio work relief committee in recent weeks by various municipalities. Gerry Kane, engineer-director for the committee, is expected to be retained by the advisory board. He has made a study of most of the proposals.

In addition, $16,000,000 is to be poured into Ohio for federal highways, and from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 is to be expended for direct federal relief on federal projects, and relief grants.

Severely per cent of the money expended on public works projects must be provided by the municipality which benefits. Many cities, anxious to be ready to start work when their projects receive approval, have already arranged for financing. Others will encounter delay for their failure to do so.

Astor Scion Rated Newport's "Most Eligible"

JOHN JACOB ASTOR JR. and MOTHER WITH MISS LE BRUN RHINELANDER

Ambitious mamas at Newport, R. I., are casting covetous glances at John Jacob Astor, 3rd, these days, for the "most eligible" young man becomes of age August 14th and inherits the $3,000,000 trust fund left him by his father, Col. John Jacob Astor. Society gossips sense a romance in the attention the Astor heir is showing Le Brun Rhinelander, debutante daughter of Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, 2nd. Last Winter he was reported engaged to Donna Christina Torlonia, daughter of Prince Torlonia of Rome and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia of New York. The reported betrothal was vigorously denied by Mrs. Torlonia. And so the Astor scion is still officially heartfree.

Durbin, Faithful to F. D. R., Is Scoffing at Opponents

COLUMBUS, July 27.—W. W. Durbin, veteran political leader of Kenton, is enjoying a hearty laugh now at the expense of his rivals who wanted to ostracize him because he defied their wishes and pioneered for the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency.

Rich reward has come to Durbin in the form of appointment as registrar of the U. S. Treasury, a position paying $5,600 a year.

Even more pleasing to Durbin, most of those who became enraged when he urged Ohio to forget its own candidates at the Chicago national convention in 1932, and vote for Roosevelt, have been denied admission to the Democratic "picnicker."

"Bill" Durbin, who formerly was Democratic state chairman, had only a half-vote at the Chicago convention, but he gave it almost the weight of 50 votes.

DELEGATION UNMOVED

Up and down the corridors of the hotels he crusaded for Roosevelt's nomination. But the Ohio delegation was almost unanimously unmoved. It was determined to back one of its favorite sons.

Durbin might be called one of the "original Roosevelt" men. He was a supporter for the Roosevelt candidacy long before the big convention. His son, Francis Durbin, political leader at Lima, was an alternate to the convention and got in numerous licks for Roosevelt.

Announcement of Durbin's appointment as registrar of the treasury was made a day in advance of the appointment of his chief rival, Democratic State Chairman Henry G. Brunner of Mansfield, as Ohio manager of the federal home owners' loan corporation. Durbin and Brunner, along with National Committeeman W. A. Julian of Cincinnati, are the only Ohioans yet to be recognized by the administration at Washington in the distribution of important patronage jobs.

The Washington appointment will provide another chapter in the colorful political career of the elder Durbin, who, despite his political record, is also widely known for another reason. He is celebrated among the magi of the land, being president of the International Order of Magicians.

HONORED BY MAGICIANS

Only last year the international order held convention at Kenton and was entertained at the Durbin home.

Almost simultaneously Durbin was tried and convicted on charges of circulating unsigned election material during a campaign in which another of his rivals, former Judge Charles F. Schaber of Bucyrus, was defeated in his race for Congress. The case was appealed and Durbin came out the victor.

Mr. Durbin's duties as registrar of the treasury have not been fully explained here. The treasury department defines the office as "the retirement branch of the public debt service" and lists its duties as "the receipt, examination and custody of public debt."

Misses Harriett and Ruth Morris, of Salt Creek, are visiting the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

U. S. SEEKS TO FREE WORKS PROGRAM OF ANY GRAFTED COSTS

WASHINGTON, July 28.—A web-like investigation system to render "graft-proof" the $3,300,000 public works program was promised today by the public works administration.

The system will not only embrace the huge federal projects but will extend to state, county and city public works in the remotest corners of the country, when federal money is granted or loaned.

Secretary of Interior Ickes, as public works administrator, planned to give Louis P. Glavis, chief of the department's investigation staff, wide power to check upon contracts and methods of carrying out public works projects.

VISIT ALL SECTIONS

The tentative plan calls for a small staff of investigators, responsible to Ickes and Glavis, who will travel into every section of the country.

Although regional and state advisory boards have been named to decentralize the applications for funds to build local projects with federal funds, state engineers will be named. These engineers will be directly responsible to Col. Henry Waite, deputy administrator.

In addition the forces of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins will be utilized to see that labor gets a square deal and attorneys with scrutinize all contracts.

Ickes was also seeking a record for low administration costs. He said salaries of the 10 regional advisers at $6,000 a year and will allow the state advisers $10 a day for each day they work, with $5 for subsistence when away from home.

Approval of a $70,000,000 army housing project appeared imminent, after the war department slashed its original request in half.

The public works board, however, has refused to consider a request for $20,000,000 to carry out existing flood control contracts. It said that Director of the Budget Douglas, who impounded the funds, should release them.

The board declined to discuss rivers and harbors projects at its meeting yesterday, although Maj. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, was present to explain the situation. The war department has an initial $50,000,000 rivers and harbors program. Army motorization also was temporarily shelved.

Schack was in court for a hearing on a bank robbery charge when he suddenly produced a revolver which had been smuggled to him and killed Policeman Sevic in a desperate effort to escape. Schack was shot twice and critically wounded.

MILES STUDIES OHIO PROGRAM

Thousands of Jobs To Be Available Within Short Time, Disclose.

COLUMBUS, July 28.—Thousands of jobs for Ohioans are to be made available in a very short time after the state advisory board on public works swings into action, probably next week, International News Service learned today.

Rufus E. Miles of Columbus, one of the three members appointed to the board Wednesday, declared that approval will be given to numerous proposed Ohio projects immediately, and that plans will promptly be laid before Secretary of the Interior Ickes, public works administrator, for his sanction.

Projects totaling almost $70,000,000 have been proposed to the Ohio work relief committee in recent weeks by various municipalities. Gerry Kane, engineer-director for the committee, is expected to be retained by the advisory board. He has made a study of most of the proposals.

In addition, $16,000,000 is to be poured into Ohio for federal highways, and from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 is to be expended for direct federal relief on federal projects, and relief grants.

Seventy per cent of the money expended on public works projects must be provided by the municipality which benefits. Many cities anxious to be ready to start work when their projects receive approval, have already arranged for financing. Others will encounter delay for their failure to do so.

Astor Scion Rated Newport's "Most Eligible"

JOHN JACOB ASTOR JR. 2nd MOTHER WITH MISS LE BRUN RHINELANDER

Ambitious mamas at Newport, R. I., are casting covetous glances at John Jacob Astor, 3rd, these days, for the "most eligible" young man becomes of age August 14th and inherits the $3,000,000 trust fund left him by his father, Col. John Jacob Astor. Society gossips sense a romance in the attention the Astor heir is showing LeBrun Rhinelander, debutante daughter of Mrs. Philip Rhinelander, 2nd. Last Winter he was reported engaged to Donna Christina Torlonia, daughter of Prince Torlonia of Rome and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia of New York. The reported betrothal was vigorously denied by Mrs. Torlonia. And so the Astor scion is still officially heartfree.

Durbin, Faithful to F. D. R., Is Scoffing at Opponents

COLUMBUS, July 27.—W. W.

Durbin, veteran political leader of Kenton, is enjoying a hearty laugh now at the expense of his rivals who wanted to ostracize him because he defied their wishes and pioneered for the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency.

Rich reward has come to Durbin in the form of appointment as registrar of the U. S. Treasury, position paying $5,600 a year.

Even more pleasing to Durbin, most of those who became enraged when he urged Ohio to forget its own candidates at the Chicago national convention in 1932, and vote for Roosevelt, have been denied admission to the Democratic "pic counter."

"Bill" Durbin, who formerly was Democratic state chairman, had only a half-vote at the Chicago convention, but he gave it almost the weight of 50 votes.

DELEGATION UNMOVED

Up and down the corridors of the hotels he crusaded for Roosevelt's nomination. But the Ohio delegation was almost unanimously unmoved. It was determined to back one of its favorite sons.

Durbin might be called one of the "original Roosevelt" men. He was a supporter for the Roosevelt candidacy long before the big convention. His son, Francis Durbin, political leader at Lima, was an alternate to the convention and got in numerous licks for Roosevelt.

Announcement of Durbin's appointment as registrar of the treasury was made a day in advance of the appointment of his chief rival, Democratic State Chairman Henry G. Brunner of Mansfield, as Ohio manager of the federal home owners' loan corporation. Durbin and Brunner, along with National Committeeman W. A. Julian of Cincinnati, are the only Ohioans yet to be recognized by the administration at Washington in the distribution of important patronage jobs.

The Washington appointment will provide another chapter in the colorful political career of the elder Durbin, who, despite his political record, is also widely known for another reason. He is celebrated among the magi of the land, being president of the International Order of Magicians.

HONORED BY MAGICIANS

Only last year the international order held convention at Kenton and was entertained at the Durbin home.

Almost simultaneously Durbin was tried and convicted on charges of circulating unsigned election material during a campaign in which another of his rivals, Former Judge Charles F. Schaber of Bucyrus, was defeated in his race for Congress. The case was appealed and Durbin came out the victor.

Mr. Durbin's duties as registrar of the treasury have not been fully explained here. The treasury department defines the office as "the retirement branch of the public debt service" and lists its duties as "the receipt, examination and custody of public debt."

Misses Harriett and Ruth Morris, of Salt Creek-twp, are visiting the Century of Progress exposition in Chicago.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

ONE trouble about being a girl is that you've got to waste a lot of time with boys that ain't very interesting. Why, a girl will let a guy call on her, just to see whether he shows any signs of a brain or a bank account, and she generally finds out by nine o'clock all about him. But she can't send him home then, and she's got to appear to be awake for a long time after that.

But one guy said to his girl, "Say, if I stay till twelve, do you think your Ma will be sore?"

"Not unless she has to entertain you," says the girl. And so he stayed.

"When Are You Taking our Vacation?"

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXV

The nearest telephone was in the drug store just around the corner on River Street. Mary Faith rushed to the evil-smelling little booth and gave Dr. Thatcher's number.

While she was waiting for him to answer she heard Kim's voice, his slow deep voice that was like no other voice in the world. He was talking to some one in the prescription room just behind the telephone booth. And before she had finished talking to Dr. Thatcher, Kim walked past her to the front of the store.

"Good-bye," she heard him call to some one behind the partition, and a girl's voice answered:

"Good-bye. See you later."

Mary Faith watched him go out. Then she heard the familiar sputter of his roadster. She opened the door of the booth and stepped out. Behind her, in the prescription room, she could hear a girl humming. She hurried into the lamp-strewn darkness of River Street and turned toward home. Her thoughts were where her heart was at that moment—in the flat with the baby. At the moment jealousy and heartbreak and suspicion were trivial things in the face of his illness. The very word "convulsion" was so terrifying.

She reached the door of the apartment building just as Kim came around the corner from the garage. "Where have you been?" he asked, waiting for her to unlock the door.

"Same place you were—at the drug store," she told him, with a flash of bitterness.

She ran up the stairs ahead of him and through the flat to the bathroom, where Mrs. Farrell had the baby in a tub of hot water. She did not think of Kim again until eight o'clock, when the doctor had gone and she was sitting beside the baby's crib, watching his regular breathing.

Then Kim came to the door of the bedroom and beckoned to her. She did not move, merely looked up at him thoughtfully.

"Kim," she said at last, getting up from her chair, "I saw you in the store tonight, and I heard you in the back room, talking to that girl. Kim, how can you be so cheap? Carrying on an affair in the back room of a store—"

"Oh, for goodness' sake!" Kim interrupted, with a groan. They were in the dining room now, and he sat down beside the table, shaking his head. "What are you trying to do, Mary Faith? Make me confess that I'm in love with a clerk in a store, just because I happened to drop in for a book or a pack of cigarettes every now and then?"

He got up and stood in front of her.

"What's the matter with you?" he asked.

Mary Faith shook her head. "Kim, you were in the back room of that store."

"Well, what if I was? I was sitting back there talking to Jim and that girl clerk. That may be a crime in your eyes, but that's what I was doing."

Jim, Mary Faith knew, was the proprietor of the store. She had not heard his voice as she stood in the telephone booth, but that did not prove that he had not been there, and she wanted to believe that he had been there. She wanted so desperately to believe that nothing was wrong—that Kim had no interest in that pretty blond girl.

"You've been away from home so much lately," she said, looking up at him.

He raised his thick level eyebrows. "I've been working hard lately, Mary Faith, and you know it. I haven't bothered you with all the details. I thought, if I told you that I had to go out and stay late occasionally, you'd understand. I never dreamed that you were torturing yourself like this."

"But I was," she blurted out.

"Kim, how could I help it, when I saw you smiling at that girl that night when we were in the drug store? And lately you've been going out every night and staying so long—"

"She was crying, now, and her face was drawn and white."

"Kim, I shouldn't go to pieces like this," she knew that he hated to see her cry. He was looking at her with an expression of actual dislike in his eyes. "But I can't help crying. If you only knew how sick the baby's been tonight—and you weren't here—"

"I don't see why you should be jealous," he said.

"Any woman who loves a man is jealous when he comes to be interested in some other woman. Of course, I know you love me and the baby."

"Well, then, what are you having hysterics about?" He spoke briefly and harshly. Then he went on in that same hard, angry voice. "Now, let me tell you something, Mary Faith. If you cut out the price and meet me at the door with a smile now and then, you wouldn't have to worry about me and other women. If I don't follow you around like a shadow all the time, it's your own fault. You hadn't figured it out that way, had you?"

He picked up his hat and went out. The door slammed behind him.

Mary Faith stood where he had left her, wringing her hands in genuine pain at the unfairness of the things he had just said to her. She knew that they were unfair and untrue, and yet she felt that somehow or other she had failed him. It was her job to hold him, and she had failed. She knew that what he demanded of her life was gawdy and good cheer, and that when he didn't get what he wanted at home, he looked elsewhere.

"But how could I laugh when the baby was sick?" Mary Faith went on thinking, and the more she thought the more angry she became. "And how could I smile when Kim came home after an evening with that girl—after and pretend that I didn't know where he'd been?"

But surely there must be men who didn't look for amusement and love-making all of the time. There must be husbands who shared the burden of illness and anxiety with their wives. Men who realized that marriage and children and home-making aren't all "beer and skittles," as Mrs. Puckett would probably have expressed it.

Kim was like a spoiled boy, Mary Faith decided. There was no use in talking to him; the thing to do was to stand by and wait for him to grow up.

He did not come home that night. The next morning she telephoned the office. Mr. Farrell had come in a few minutes ago, the telephone girl told her, but he had gone out again.

He was sick then.

"Sick and sulking," said Mary Faith to herself. She wondered where he had spent the night, and decided that in all probability he had gone downtown with Jack Maldon.

eral Power Commission.

Since 1928, McNinch has been an anathema to North Carolina's Democratic leadership. That year he bolted the party and led the Hoofers to victory. As a reward Hoover put him on the Power Commission.

So when F. D. R. was elected, state leaders rubbed their hands in anticipation. At last they were going to even scores with McNinch. His retirement was confidently expected. Instead, President Roosevelt, without consulting any of them, quietly promoted him.

Privately, the leaders are sore as boils. But there isn't a thing they dare do or say about it. These are the reasons:

First, McNinch has a magnificent Progressive record on the Commission. Although appointed to follow the Republican President's pro-power policies, and successfully balked him in a number of bitter fights. The Senate Republicans, led by Nebraska's Norris, are 100 per cent for McNinch, and urged his appointment as chairman.

Second, McNinch's appointment does not have to be confirmed by the Senate, so Bailey and Reynolds can't scuttle it there.

Finally, and this is what hurts worst of all, the President is so popular. Stands so strong with the electorate, that the indignant politicians don't dare assail his action.

Merry-Go-Round

General Balbo, leader of the Italian air squadron, pledged newspapermen to print nothing about his flight until the day it started, but sold his own exclusive articles to an American newspaper chain. The Red Cross recently placed orders for several hundred thousand dollars worth of socks, underwear, and clothing for aid distribution to unemployed destitute. It got the money for this from the sale of the last of the 840,000 bales of cotton held by the Farm Board that Congress voted should be turned over to the Red Cross. So far the Red Cross has distributed more than 20,000,000 garments and 85,000,000 yards of cloth as a result of this grant.

CHILDREN TO GIVE MEMORY PROGRAM

The service tonight at Memorial Hall will be most unusual in that a class of children who have been taking training for the past two weeks under Mr. and Mrs. Owen M. Walker, song leader and pianist for the evangelistic crusade which is now going on there, will give from memory the answers to over 250 questions concerning the Bible and the Christian life.

In addition to the answers to all these questions the class will sing about 30 choruses, quote scripture and offer the evening prayer. It will be perhaps one of the most remarkable demonstrations of Bible knowledge ever given in Circleville and every teacher and those interested in training children and young people should witness this program.

The services start promptly at 8 o'clock and it was announced last night that no one would be admitted after 8:10, as no one is permitted to enter the room after the children begin their answers until they are all through and that will take about 30 minutes. So come early and be there for the great demonstration.

Girl Scout News

The Circleville Girl Scout Troop No. 2 met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Ward Robinson, for the weekly meeting. Since most of the girls are attending Camp only, eight were present.

We discussed plans for taking our supper and going to Camp Indiana to spend the afternoon with the girls from our troop. We discussed questions about cooking and then adjourned.

It is requested that the girls meet at Mrs. Robinson's Friday morning at 10 o'clock to make further plans for Sunday.

MOVIES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Charles Bickford, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, Jean Hersholt, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine and George E. Stone play the leading roles in "Song of the Eagle," drama portraying the march of events in America during the past two decades, which opens today at the Cliftona Theatre.

The picture, a thrilling chronicle of war and peace, of prohibition and speculation, of depression and sorrow, swings on into the future, dealing boldly with the question of what is to follow the legalization of beer and the restoration of prosperity. Ralph Murphy directed the film, produced for Paramount by Charles R. Rogers.

Although Buck Jones finished second best to John Boles for the affection of Nancy Carroll in Columbia's "Call of the Mannekin," we assume Jones fans as "Mannekin" we the kind to let such a thing happen twice in succession. "The California Trail," at the Grand Theatre, bears out our statement. He wins the girl for himself in his role of a dashing caballero (a la Doug Fairbanks) in so doing.

Jaundice Is Indication Of Internal Disturbance

Doctor Cites Symptoms and Gives Treatment for Common Ailment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M.D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

WHILE RIDING in a street car the other day, I noticed several persons staring with great curiosity at one of the passengers. The man's skin was the color of a lemon and even the whites of his eyes appeared yellow. Evidently his skin itched for he seemed uncomfortable and could not resist the temptation to scratch his hands and face.

It is probable that most of my fellow passengers wondered what was the matter with this man. If you have ever seen a case of jaundice, knowing what it was, you would immediately have recognized it. "Yellow jaundice" is an annoying and often stubborn condition.

Not a Disease
It is not a disease, but is a symptom or sign of some disturbance of the bile passages. Normally, the bile flows in the liver and is stored in the gallbladder. There are certain passages which lead from the gallbladder to the intestine.

When there is an obstruction in the bile passages the bile is dammed back and overflows into the blood stream. The blood distributes the bile to the skin and other parts of the body. This gives the sufferer the yellow discoloration of the skin called "jaundice."

The obstruction may be caused by any inflammation of the stomach, intestine, liver or gallbladder. It may be the result of gallstones that block the passage and prevent the flow of bile. In other cases it may be a sign of some serious disturbance of the tissues of blood.

Jaundice may occur in the young as well as the old. In fact, there is a form of jaundice frequently encountered in new-born infants. This type is usually known as "serous neonatorum." It is not serious and the condition disappears within a few days.

Follows Grippe
"Acute catarrhal jaundice" is commonly seen in adults after a simple cold, gripple or "flu." It is believed to be a catarrhal inflammation of the bile passages caused by the same germs that cause the gripple or cold. It is never serious, but is extremely uncomfortable.

The sufferer complains of a mild headache, dizziness, nausea and vomiting. The skin is discolored and itches. This may persist for a period of three or four weeks. Mild cases require little medication other than rest in bed and proper diet.

Severe cases are benefited by use of the so-called "codal tube." Bear in mind that jaundice is a sign of some disturbance within the body. It requires medical attention and should never be neglected.

Answers to Health Queries

R. S. W. Q.—I have been troubled for a long time with constipation and chronic appendicitis. This condition has affected my entire system—what would you advise?

A.—Have your doctor advise you. Removal of the appendix would probably be of general advantage under these circumstances. Avoid constipation and indigestion. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

M. L. C. Q.—What will develop the legs? 2.—What should a girl of 19, five feet tall—weigh? 3.—What are some of the fattening foods?

A.—Exercise and massage should help toward this end. 2.—She should weigh about 115 pounds—this would be about average for her age and height as determined by examination of a large number of persons. 3.—Sweets, bread, cake, pastries, cream, butter, potatoes, spaghetti, etc.

A Safeguard Erected

THE process of putting the new deal into effect is reported to have brought to Washington swarms of lobbyists representing or claiming to represent various interests.
But if General Johnson, administrator of the industrial recovery act, adheres to his announced policy of seeing that all transactions take place "in a goldfish bowl," many are likely to have only their pains for their efforts. The kind of lobbying that has as its aim the obtaining of some special advantage for one element or group over another can not thrive in public view. It is this kind that the Johnson policy will kill.

The administrator's plan is commendable from every legitimate standpoint. There have been few times in history when publicity in matters of government were more needed than at present. The most far-reaching experiment ever undertaken in the United States is beginning. Every individual and every class and group of citizens will be affected. These have a right to know what is being done and just how and why it is being done. Secret moves, however honest might be the purpose behind them, would cause suspicion and constitute a danger that might imperil the whole experiment.

There always have been and probably always will be selfish interests that would profit at the expense of others. If the great industrial reconstruction program now taking active shape, with the machinery of its operation centered in Washington, offers them an opportunity such as they never before experienced. They see the possibility of getting their hands into affairs in a way that would yield handsome profits, provided they can conceal their real aims. General Johnson no doubt was aware of this situation when he decided on his policy to let the light of publicity permeate all the work of his office. In his action he showed recognition of the dangers that need to be avoided and displayed commendable foresight in taking precautions. His action was a warning to selfish interests and an assurance to the public.

Who recalls when John Barleycorn was only an accessory to an election instead of an issue?

A Time of Opportunity

THE present is a time of very fine opportunity. Business is reviving, and people are buying more freely. It is necessary for family and business welfare for people to buy now, because prices will in all probability be much higher in a few months.
But to convince people that that is so will take some persuasion. The people should be shown by advertising that prices are still very low, that they are likely to be higher soon, that the advanced prices on raw materials and labor make substantial advances in the prices of goods inevitable within a short time.
By advertising, they can be shown that if they buy now, they get the advantage of the old level of prices, which can't last.

"MARY FAITH"
by Beatrice Burton
COPYRIGHT, 1931, BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER XXXV

The nearest telephone was in the drug store just around the corner on River Street. Mary Faith rushed to the evil-smelling little booth and gave Dr. Thatcher's number.

While she was waiting for him to answer she heard Kim's voice, his slow deep voice that was like no other voice in the world. He was talking to some one in the prescription room just behind the telephone booth. And before she had finished talking to Dr. Thatcher, Kim walked past her to the front of the store.

"Good-bye," she heard him call to some one behind the partition, and a girl's voice answered:
"Good-bye. See you later."

Mary Faith watched him go out. Then she heard the familiar sputter of his roadster. She opened the door of the booth and stepped out. Behind her, in the prescription room, she could hear a girl humming. She hurried into the lamp-starred darkness of River Street and turned toward home. Her thoughts were where her heart was at that moment—in the flat with the baby. At the moment jealousy and heartbreak and suspicion were trivial things in the face of his illness. The very word "convulsion" was so terrifying.

She reached the door of the apartment building just as Kim came around the corner from the garage. "Where have you been?" he asked, waiting for her to unlock the door.

"Same place you were—at the drug store," she told him, with a flash of bitterness.
She ran up the stairs ahead of him and through the flat to the bathroom, where Mrs. Farrell had the baby in a tub of hot water. She did not think of Kim again until eight o'clock, when the doctor had gone and she was sitting beside the baby's crib, watching his regular breathing.

Then Kim came to the door of the bedroom and beckoned to her. She did not move, merely looked up at him thoughtfully.
"Kim," she said at last, getting up from her chair. "I saw you in the store tonight, and I heard you in the back room, talking to that girl. Kim, how can you be so cheap? Carrying on an affair in the back room of a store—"

"Oh, for goodness' sake!" Kim interrupted, with a groan. They were in the dining room now, and he sat beside the table, shaking his head. "What are you trying to do, Mary Faith? Make me confess that I'm in love with a clerk in a store, just because I happened to drop in for a book or a pack of cigarettes every now and then?"
He got up and stood in front of her.
"What's the matter with you?" he asked.
Mary Faith shook her head. "Kim, you were in the back room of that store."

Mary Faith watched him go out.

much lately," she said, looking up at him.
He raised his thick level eyebrows. "I've been working hard lately, Mary Faith, and you know it. I haven't bothered you with all the details. I thought, if I told you that I had to go out and stay late occasionally, you'd understand. I never dreamed that you were torturing yourself like this."

"But I was," she blurted out. "Kim, how could I help it, when I saw you smiling at that girl that night when we were in the drug store? And lately you've been going out every night and staying so late—" She was crying now, and her face was drawn and white.

"Kim, I shouldn't go to pieces like this. She knew that he hated to see her cry. He was looking at her with an expression of actual dislike in his eyes. "But I can't help crying. If you only knew how sick the baby's been tonight—and you weren't here—and Kim, I've been so jealous and unhappy the last month or so."

"I don't see why you should be jealous," he said.
"Any woman who loves a man is jealous when he seems to be interested in some other woman. Of course, I know you love me and the baby."

"Well, then, what are you having hysterics about?" He spoke briefly and brutally. Then he went on in that same hard, angry voice. "Now, let me tell you something, Mary Faith. If you'd cut out the griet and meet me at the door with a smile now and then, you wouldn't have to worry about me and other women. If I don't follow you around like a shadow all the time, it's your own fault. You hadn't figured it out that way, had you?"
He picked up his hat and went out. The door slammed behind him.

eral Power Commission.
Since 1928, McNinch has been an anathema to North Carolina's Democratic leadership. That year he bolted the party and led the Hoovercrats to victory. As a reward Hoover put him on the Power Commission.
So when F. D. R. was elected, state leaders rubbed their hands in anticipation. At last they were going to even scores with McNinch. His retirement was confidently expected. Instead, President Roosevelt, without consulting any of them, quietly promoted him.

Privately, the leaders are sore as boils. But there isn't a thing they dare do or say about it. These are the reasons:

First, McNinch has a magnificent Progressive record on the Commission. Although appointed by Hoover, he refused flatly to follow the Republican President's pro-power policies, and successfully balked him in a number of bitter fights. The Senate Republicans, led by Nebraska's Norris, are 100 per cent for McNinch, and urged his appointment as chairman.

Second, McNinch's appointment does not have to be confirmed by the Senate, so Bailey and Reynolds can't scuttle it there.

Finally, and this is what hurts worst of all, the President is so popular, stands so strong with the electorate, that the indignant politicians don't dare assail his action.

CHILDREN TO GIVE MEMORY PROGRAM

The service tonight at Memorial Hall will be most unusual in that a class of children who have been taking training for the past two weeks under Mr. and Mrs. Owen M. Walker, song leader and pianist for the evangelistic crusade which is now going on there, will give from memory the answers to over 250 questions concerning the Bible and the Christian life.

In addition to the answers to all these questions the class will sing about 30 choruses, quote scripture and offer the evening prayer. It will be perhaps one of the most remarkable demonstrations of Bible knowledge ever given in Circleville and every teacher and those interested in training children and young people should witness this program.
The services start promptly at 8 o'clock and it was announced last night that no one would be admitted after 8:10, as no one is permitted to enter the room after the children begin their answers until they are all through and that will take about 30 minutes. So come early and be there for the great demonstration.

Girl Scout News

The Circleville Girl Scout Troop No. 2 met at the home of their leader, Mrs. Ward Robinson, for the weekly meeting. Since most of the girls are attending Camp only eight were present.

We discussed plans for taking our supper and going to Camp Indiana to spend the afternoon with the girls from our troop. We discussed questions about cooking and then adjourned.

It is requested that the girls meet at Mrs. Robinson's Friday morning at 10 a. m. to make further plans for Sunday.

AIMEE'S HUSBAND

TARGET FOR EGGS

HOLLYWOOD, July 28 — For hurling a barrage of eggs across the footlights of Hollywood theater at David Hutton, Jr., estranged husband of Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, a woman who gave her name as Jane Jones, 27, was booked today by police on charges of disturbing the peace.

The woman threw four eggs at Hutton as he began his torch singing act in a well lighted theatre.

Hutton was untouched by the barrage. All the eggs landed in the wings of the stage. A detective seated near the woman arrested her.

With repeal apparently just around the corner, the bootleggers probably will not go to the trouble of drawing up a code under the federal reconstruction act.

Will Rogers Picks A Story For This Spot

By WILL ROGERS

KIDS try to imitate their elders more's the pity. Sometimes it ain't so bad, but generally the kid would be a wonder if he didn't have to be like somebody that's already grown up. Kids in school try to imitate their teachers, of course, and that's all right too sometimes.

This kid's name is Mary. She's heard the kindergarten teacher tell a lot of stories and stop every now and then and ask the kids, "What do you suppose happened then?" The teacher was doing that to keep the kids interested, but Mary thought it was the only way to tell a story. So when the teacher asked her to tell about going to the dog and pony show, Mary said:

"Well, we'd read about all the elephants with the show, and so Mama took me to where the animals were. And," Mary said, looking at the other kids like she'd seen the teacher do, "what do you think we saw?"

The kids guessed everything, from condors to cuckoos. Mary kept shaking her head until the kids subsided, and then somebody said, "Well, what did you see?"

"We saw no elephants," she said, and then waited for the kids to look interested.
